Hi, fellow League members and friends:

Our League At Work:

Our League is off and running. We kicked-off in September with a well attended meeting and a lively speaker from Americans United for the Separation of Church and State. Some of our members went out and registered voters. Our Running and winning committee had its first meeting.

We are doing several consensus meetings at the LWVUS level in the next month or two. This coming Monday (Nov 2) we will have a consensus meeting on amending the constitution. Interesting discussion guaranteed, and we'd love a good showing. Please join us at the Haddon Township Library at 7.

In December we will be looking at "Money in Politics" as part of the holiday party/program planning meeting. Hopefully, some program planning to give the LWVUS a sense of our goals as well. You will hear more about that at our December get together, the annual holiday potluck party at Bobbie Porter's.

We are on our way towards another good year with interesting programs and opportunities for involvement and service to our community.

In League,
Myrna

Getting there - Directions!

Haddon Township: Rohrer Library: Take 295 to Route 30 north. On 30, pass King's Highway. In about a mile after King's Highway, just after Nicholson Road on the left, you'll see Cuthbert Road on the right. Turn right onto Cuthbert from 30. Stay on Cuthbert for about half a mile. Just past Hopkins, turn right onto MacArthur. The library is at that corner. // This is the same Cuthbert Road that becomes Cuthbert Blvd further north at routes 70 and 38, so you could take it south from there. MacArthur is about 0.8 miles south of Haddon Avenue on Cuthbert Blvd.

LWVUS Constitutional Amendment Study

"Article V of the US Constitution provides two ways of proposing amendments to the nation's fundamental charter. Congress, by a two-thirds vote of both chambers, may propose constitutional amendments to the states for ratification. OR, the legislatures of two-thirds of the states (34 at present) may ask Congress to call a convention to propose amendments to the Constitution; this is commonly called an Article V Convention. Amendments proposed by either method must be ratified by three-fourths of the states, 38 at present.

Perhaps it goes without saying that the League of Women Voters believes it is right and permissible to amend the Constitution of the United States when circumstances demand. The League was born from the successful, decades-long effort to pass the 19th Amendment.

The question for us today is: what are the shared values and beliefs within the League – what consensus do we have – regarding the circumstances that might allow or compel the League to endorse a constitutional amendment or an Article V Convention?

We might support an amendment that was in concert with League positions, but we might not support every amendment that was in concert with League positions. In other words, having a position on the issue is necessary but might not be sufficient for the League to endorse a constitutional amendment."

Part I of the consensus is simply about when the League should agree that a change in the constitution is appropriate. "In determining whether to support or oppose a particular constitutional amendment or the Article V Constitutional Convention process, the first and most important question is whether the League supports or opposes the subject of the amendment based on League public policy positions." If it does not, then of course we would not support the constitution change. But even if we support the amendment's goals, we might not support the idea of an amendment. For example, the LWVNJ opposes constitutional dedication of taxes, because we don't want to tie the legislature's hands in how to spend tax money (among other reasons). So even if we thought a particular dedicated tax was in principle a good idea, we might oppose it if it involved amending the constitution. This same kind of reasoning may apply at the national level as well.

So, should we take an amendment as a rather extreme act to be used only for deep and abiding issues, or can we change the constitution for less striking reasons? How important is the likely effectiveness of the proposed change -- could we support a reasonable amendment even though it might not fully achieve its intended goals? Such an amendment may require more interpretation by the courts, which might be fine -- is it? Should we only approve amendments that make the system more democratic or extend individual rights (or could we amend for other kinds of issues)? If the issue could be resolved by legislation, is that a strong argument against amending the constitution, or should we consider both approaches sometimes?

Part II considers whether the League would support a constitutional convention, and if so, under what circumstances. For example, would we require that a convention be public and transparent (or might we accept the option for private negotiations)? Should the members be based on population or 1 state = 1 vote? Must state delegates be elected, or can they be appointed? Must the convention be limited to a specific topic? Of course, it is not clear that this is even possible! So one major question is whether the League should oppose conventions in all cases because of the uncertainty about the powers of such a body. Should states be allowed to rescind their call for convention once made?

Part III asks some "balancing questions" like could we support an amendment that advanced a League position but had flaws? And how strongly do we feel about the process matters in Part II -- if we liked the amendment enough, might we support it even if aspects of the process were undesirable, such as how delegates to a convention would be elected or how open the process might be?

This one argues that amending is fine: <http://forum.lwv.org/member-resources/article/synopsis-%E2%80%9Cconstitutional-amendments-and-constitutional-common-law%E2%80%9D>

This one discusses issues in a Convention. It's fairly long, but there is a summary you can focus on on page 2: <http://fas.org/sgp/crs/misc/R42589.pdf>

This is also on a convention. If you could read the section up to the Background (pages 1, 2, and part of 3) that would be good: <http://www.cbpp.org/sites/default/files/atoms/files/7-16-14sfp.pdf>
